Special Training, Facilities or Equipment Required: Teacher should have mentorship skills

Course Synopsis: This course prepares and motivates students to provide leadership and assistance in learning to others in their schools and communities. Students will develop skills in communication, demonstrating initiatives, teamwork, and interpersonal relationships. These skills will be applying in roles such as providing one-to-one tutoring, working with small groups of students as directed by teachers, promoting good organizational skills in classroom situations and overall assisting teacher with organizational procedures in the classroom.

Goals and Rationale:

This course is designed to teach students skills in leadership and interpersonal relations. It gives them an opportunity to help other students in a safe and familiar environment. They will be involved in a mentoring role with an expert teacher. Students will learn about a variety of learning issues and how to help students experiencing them. They will recognize their importance as a leader, role model, and helper. The approach to this course is one that encourages observation, interpretation, question, presentation, initiative and most importantly, involvement and service.

Indigenous Worldviews and Perspectives: Learning involves generational roles and responsibility Learning involves patience and time Learning requires exploration of one's identity
Learning is holistic, reflexive, reflective, experiential, and relational
